Marionette Noir Says “Unsubscribe” on Perforated Manipulation Anthem “I Don't Need The Sugar”

MINNEAPOLIS, MN — Independent artist and producer Marionette Noir is officially rolling out the campaign for her dark, cinematic track “I Don't Need The Sugar.” Originally released quietly on December 29, 2025, this swagger-driven anthem is now taking center stage in a dedicated rollout designed to connect directly with survivors navigating the quiet aftermath of toxic interpersonal dynamics.

Blending elements of Dark Cabaret, Alternative Rock, and Contemporary Blues, “I Don't Need The Sugar” serves as a clinical, unapologetic exit notice for hollow relationships. Built on wry, razor-sharp forensic storytelling, the track dismantles the illusion of empty sweetness, using the metaphor of a perforated, "candy-coated hell" to expose manipulation for exactly what it is.

“A leaking light, a dozen holes, open to the night... Unsubscribe, I'm through with you,” states Marionette Noir.

Layered with moody, atmospheric guitars, theatrical gloom, and a steady, defiant rhythm, the song is not about sticking around to fix what is broken. Instead, it captures the absolute freedom of realizing the trap is empty, severing the strings, and quietly taking one's power back.

Written and produced entirely by Marionette Noir, orchestrating rich instrumentation based entirely on human-led lyrics and melodies, the rollout of this track continues her mission to build a sonic sanctuary for survivors of deceit and betrayal.

About Marionette Noir

Marionette Noir is an independent songwriter and producer based in Minneapolis, Minnesota, specializing in cinematic, mood-driven soundscapes. Operating entirely from the studio, she champions a completely human-led approach to music creation, meticulously authoring every lyric, melody, and emotional truth.
