(Verse I)

You threw out the line
And you waited for the bite
You painted a maybe
In the middle of the night
You gave me the hope
You let the light through the door
Then you acted surprised
When I asked you for more
You stepped back slow
While I was leaning in Treating my heartbeat like
Like a cardinal sin

(Verse II)

Oh you fed me the hope
Just to watch me go hungry
You traded the "us"
For something dark and lonely
The minute I slipped
You started the count
Adding up my failures
In a massive amount
You devalued the gold
Just to feel like a king
Now I'm just a ghost
On your broken string

(Verse III)

You said you were kiddin'
But the teeth were all there
A sideways glance
And a cold empty stare
I reached for your hand
But you drew back in fear
Turning my warmth
Into something to sneer

(Verse IV)

You framed me as too much
Just to keep yourself small
Building a case
While you stood by your wall
You stayed for the praise
But you left for the blame

(Verse V)

You gave me the map
Then you changed every street
You tasted the sugar
Then you claimed it was too sweet
You played the target
While you held the gun
Labeling me the danger
So you could run
You tore down your fences
Just to claim I trespassed
You gave me a hope that
You never meant to last

(Outro)

I took your jabs like a joke
But the joke's on you
Cause I'm the best never happened
That you're gonna regret
I'm walking on the gravel
And I haven't looked back

Step into the shadows.
